The United Nations General Assembly declared the 22 May of each year "The International Day for Biological Diversity" with the purpose of increasing widespread understanding and awareness of biodiversity issues.

The theme for this year's celebration is "Marine Biodiversity" and is envisaged to provide Parties to the Convention on Biological Diversity and everyone interested in marine life, the opportunity to raise awareness of the issue and increase practical action.

To celebrate this day, panel discussions by marine experts are held at the Louis Leakey Memorial Hall, National Museum of Kenya, on Tuesday, 22 May 2012, from 10.30 am to 2.30 pm as per the attached programme.
